Capitalist System Dead

THE capitalist system as we knew it is as dead as feudalism, said Mr. Lemass, Minister for Industry, speaking last night at the session's inaugural meeting of the Philosophical Society in Trinity College, Dublin, to an address on "The Planned Society."

The system under which the main driving system was personal gain, he said, irrespective of social consequences, had died because the growth of political democracy had placed power in the hands of people who wanted a social justice which capitalism was incapable of providing.

People appreciated the need for a new type of organisation in which economic development would be controlled by authority with the main purpose of securing the maximum social advantage. At the same time the difficulty of planning was formidable. The Government here had frequently been urged to form a Planning Council, but had resisted that demand because it believed that such a body would lead to endless disputes that would hold up desirable economic developments. Planning, he thought, must be confined to broad outlines of policy.

In the post-war period it would be necessary to retain Government control of trade for probably a long period. Raw materials and machinery would be scarce, and it would be necessary to retain a system of priorities. We could not escape a rapid intensification of our unemployment problem in that period, and it was the duty of the Government to plan employment-giving activities rather than wait the cautious approach of private enterprise.

WIDE POWERS

That planning had begun, but the Government must be given, in the post-war period, powers not far short of those given it for the preservation of national security for the period of the war. Small countries would be forced to conduct external trade on a national basis, as only in this way could they secure a due share of available supplies.

Mr. Kenneth Lindsay, M.P., said he believed that exports, imports, public utilities, and money control would have to be planned, unless they were to leave areas like South Wales and Durham as helpless as they had been before the war.

Dr. Henry Kennedy (I.A.O.S.) said that our greatest raw material was 40 inches of rain, uniformly distributed throughout the year, enabling us to produce grass better than it could be produced in most parts of this planet.

Mr. Micheal MacLiammoir said he thought something should be planned quickly to deal with the people who thought they could take up the practice of one of the arts with a night or two's training.

Mr. J. R. Cross, the President, giving his inaugural address, said he spoke as a Gladstonian Liberal, believing that nothing good had happened in politics since 1886. He thought that bodies like the E.S.B. showed the way along which industry of the future would develop. Such bodies seemed to combine some of the efficiency of private enterprise with the public control of more directly State-run enterprise.

Television for All.—Mr. John L. Baird, television pioneer, said in London yesterday that we might expect in five years an extension of television service to all parts of Britain, and also regular television "news reels" in all cinemas.

Allowances for Children

THE Children's Allowances Bill was introduced in the Dail yesterday and the first reading was agreed to.

It is entitled: "An Act to make Provision and Allowances in Respect of Children."

COSSACKS FIGHT AS SPEARHEADS

Whole Army Menaced

THE Germans are falling back all along the southern front below Zaporozhe, towards the lower reaches of the Dnieper, and the threat to the Crimea is growing hourly as Soviet tanks and massed artillery sweep forward west of Melitopol with unchecked momentum, Reuter's Special Correspondent cables from Moscow.

Cossack cavalry, thrown in for the first time on a large scale, are flooding through the Melitopol breach, the Berlin Correspondent of "Nya Dalgligt Allehanda," reports in Stockholm.

"Aftonbladet," describing the breaching of this line guarding the Nogaisk Steppe, said:—"The first gap was blasted by flame-throwers, massed anti-tank guns, and multi-barrelled 'Stalin organs,' which opened the way for Cossack spearheads."

As the battle nears the Crimea and the mouth of the Dnieper the Germans, menaced with the loss of a whole army, are struggling fiercely to hold the Soviet spearheads at points within 30 miles of the lower reaches of the river, Reuter's correspondent says, and adds: The Melitopol wedge has become a huge bulge, which is pressing the Germans towards Nikopol and Perekop bottleneck from the Crimea.

BREACH ADMITTED

German Radio last night said:—"Tremendous enemy forces are now employed in the Melitopol region, and more and more tanks are taking part in the battles in which, after several days of fierce fighting, the enemy succeeded in breaching our main defence line."

Colonel von Hammer, the German News Agency commentator, stated that Soviet forces in a new attack north of Gomel had forced a number of local breaches, but that they had been sealed off.

LANDING IN ROME AREA FORECAST

Martin Hallensleben, German News Agency commentator, stated last night:—"Berlin military quarters are counting on large-scale Allied landing operations, probably in the Rome area."

Axis-controlled "Radio Liberation," forecasting a similar move, declared that the Allies are planning new landings from bases in Corsica.

"In front of St. Florent and Cape Corse, Allied naval units are keeping watch over the embarkation of Allied troops," the announcer said. Large contingents took to sea yesterday, but their destination is not known.

"Enormous quantities of material and considerable numbers of men have been concentrated in northern Corsica. There are reports that the French coast may also be attacked."

German radio said last night that General Eisenhower would have to come to a decision soon if he intended to speed up the present slow advance. Therefore, it was understandable that German military circles were anticipating a surprise Allied landing against the Rome area.—(Reuter.)

M.P. Wants All-out Bombing of Germany

Mr. Purbrick (Cons.) yesterday in the British Commons asked the Prime Minister "whether he would allocate the whole of the production of heavy bombers in Britain to R.A.F. Bomber Command to be employed solely for the purpose of bombing Germany, and bring back immediately all heavy bombers at present abroad for that same purpose with a view to the destruction of Germany's production of war material."

Mr. Churchill—"I cannot discuss operational dispositions at question time."

The Paris commentator said last night:—"The tone in Berlin is still grave. Nobody is attempting to minimise the gravity of the position. The Soviet offensive is speeding along like a shellburst. It is useless to pretend that the end of the autumn offensive is approaching. On the contrary, fighting will increase in fury."

Reuter's correspondent states that the Germans are urgently in need of reinforcements, but it is impossible for them to switch troops either way without precipitating a catastrophe.

The Soviet communiqué claims advances in the direction of Krivoi Rog, S.W. of Dnepropetrovsk, N.W. of Vitebsk, and in the region S.E. of the lower reaches of the Dnieper (3 to 12½ miles).

TERRORISM IN FRANCE

A spokesman of the French Government stated over Vichy Radio last night:—

"Complete disorder is likely to break out in France at any moment.

"A new wave of terrorism is sweeping through France. Sabotage and clashes between terrorists and the police are taking place all over the country. The atmosphere is ripe for complete lawlessness.

"Discontent is creeping into the ranks of the French Legion, which is under Marshal Petain's orders."—(Reuter.)

Cherbourg Docks Bombed

A British Air Ministry communiqué last night stated:—

"Mitchell bombers of the Royal Air Force and the Royal Netherlands Naval Air Service and Whirlwind and Typhoon fighter-bombers, escorted by fighters, bombed the docks at Cherbourg this afternoon. One bomber is missing."

AGREEMENT REACHED IN MOSCOW

REUTER'S Correspondent in Washington cabled last night that it is understood there agreement has been reached in Moscow covering a wide variety of questions arising out of the conduct of the war.

A draft of the text relating to the matters on which the three Foreign Ministers found themselves in accord is now being prepared by experts for final approval.

There is no information concerning Mr. Eden's second talk with Marshal Stalin. The British Foreign Minister was accompanied by his chief military adviser, General Sir Hastings Ismay, as well as the British envoy, Sir Archibald Clark Kerr.

Mr. Leslie Hore-Belisha, M.P., told the Rotary International London District Conference yesterday that the test of the success of the Three-Power Moscow Conference was no longer the second front. It would be provided by the answer to two questions:—Will the Mediterranean Commission be extended to cover the whole of Europe, and will an advance be made towards restoring diplomatic relations between the two United Nations of Poland and Russia?

"On the answers depends whether the system of post-war security is to be a one-world system or whether we are to divide the world into zones of influence.

"Britain has more than once stated that she requires no territorial increases. Russia, on the other hand, has made it plain that she requires revisions of her frontiers. There is a growing popular opinion in the United States that the security of that country can only be assured by the occupation of certain far-flung bases."—(A.P. and Reuter.)

Big Battle Imminent in Italy

The first waves of Allied troops, storming over hills and along valleys, are nearing the outer defences of Marshal Kesselring's powerful new mountain line.

A flare-up of heavy fighting is imminent. Already German resistance is progressively increasing—although not on a great scale—as the Allied front is punched steadily forward.

From Ian Munro, Reuter's Special Correspondent at Allied H.Q.

In face of the growing resistance the Allied armies have scored important successes at three key points of the 190-mile line in the past 24 hours:—

1. The Fifth Army have cleared a 2,000 foot ridge north of Capua, which dominates the road to Rome, and are now in the plain beyond;

2. American troops have driven a deep salient into the German-held positions north-west of Raviscanina, in the western foothills of the Matese Mountains;

3. The Eighth Army have further consolidated their bridgehead across the Trigno River, four miles from the Adriatic coast, and engineers are constructing pontoon bridges under intense artillery fire.

General Clark's forces completed their clearing of the mountain ridge, stretching 10 miles north of Capua, with the capture of Riardo, two miles north of Rocchetta Croce. Battling their way downhill over a slippery mule track, hardly wide enough to take a jeep, they stormed into the plain and seized the village in face of strong German artillery fire.

GUNS LOOK DOWN

A determined German stand can be expected in this area. There is little doubt that Marshal Kesselring has concentrated considerable artillery strength on the hills at the entrance to the defile.

The Eighth Army is pushing forward all along the line against stiff resistance. Every vantage point on the widening mountain road has been turned into a German strong point, and each has to be reduced before the main body of troops can move forward. The strongest opposition is at the Trigno bridgehead, where the Germans have brought up many guns. Shelling is intense and accurate, but the Eighth Army is firmly across.

In the mountains the British have fought their way against stiff opposition four miles along a mountain road to capture Torella, nine miles north-west of Campobasso.

Every mountain on the new German line is bristling with guns, and every yard of the approaches to the few available passes is open to raking rifle fire from concealed strong points. A desperately difficult task faces the Fifth and Eighth Armies.—(Reuter.)

Rome Radio stated last night that the Allies had opened a "new general offensive" on the Italian front.—(A.P.).

Allied Air Loss Under 5 p.c.

MR. H. L. STIMSON, United States War Secretary, said yesterday that the average British and American 'plane losses over the Continent were less than five per cent.

Complete reports now put German losses on the Schweinfurt raid at 186 'planes destroyed and 27 probably destroyed. In a recent raid, he added, 501 American 'planes attacked the North of France without loss.—(Reuter.)

"Gigantic Peril" in Russia—Goebbels

DR. GOEBBELS, in a Das Reich article, quoted last night by the German News Agency, denied that there are any indications of the beginning of Germany's morale or military collapse.

Recalling that Allied propaganda for almost a year now had forecast that November 9 or 11 would bring the collapse of Germany, Dr. Goebbels added:—"That day is approaching, and wherever one looks one sees, it is true, very heavy battles at many points of Germany's world fronts.

"Considerable backward movements are also seen, but it goes without saying that nowhere are there to be found indications of a beginning of a moral or military crash of the Reich.

IN THE EAST . . .

"In the East the Russian strength is still unbroken, and we do not misjudge the gigantic peril which lies behind this fact. Indeed, this is the very peril of the war. We simply have to master it. It does not matter how, and it does not matter when.

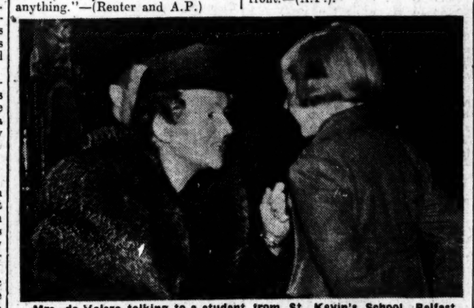
"We have a vast pool of economic and moral strength, and we have allies who, it is true, do not balance the Russian strength by a long way, but are, nevertheless, of some value.

"There remains the war in the air. There was almost none over German territory in the first World War. In this war it constitutes the main portion of our worries and of the burdens in our civilian life.

"But it may be regarded as probable, or at least possible, that in the near future the chances of this warfare will become increasingly more unfavourable for the enemy. On the one hand, our defensive strength is growing from week to week, which means that the losses of the enemy are growing as well. On the other hand, the day of a radical retaliation is approaching slowly but certainly.

"The eye of the German people still glows in wild unbroken determination, although her face is gashed after four years of war. As a rock stands in the raving ocean of time, the Fuehrer now stands before us. He never wavers and never doubts—an example to all of strength and obstinacy, telling us what to do when the storms of the wild war rage round us.

"In 1918 we surprised our enemies by our failure and our fall. This time we will surprise them by standing as one man, the entire nation, ready and determined for anything."—(Reuter and A.P.)



Mrs. de Valera talking to a student from St. Kevin's School, Belfast, at the Oireachtas Children's Festival in the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin, yesterday.

No Backdoor Promotions in the Army

ARMY promotions are not made by the Minister for Defence or Staff, and backdoor methods of obtaining it is a figment of the imagination, the Defence Minister, Mr. O. Traynor, told the Dail yesterday when the Department of Defence Estimate was passed.

Promotion, he said, was recommended by the commanding officer and ratified by a conference before going to the Council of Defence. As far as possible, the Army was non-political, and members could not express political views one way or the other.

A vote of £620,520 for Army pensions, involving 16,251 pensions, allowances and gratuities, was moved by Mr. Traynor, who said that the Army Pensions Board had almost completed its work, but had other duties. The cost of the Board was £3,784.

Mr. TRAYNOR said that the impression seemed to be that there were large-scale desertions from the Army. "I was surprised to be informed," he said, "that it represents one per cent. of the total strength, and is something that we need not have to worry about."

Scabies Must Be Notified

Scabies is now a notifiable disease an Irish Times reporter learned last night.

This step by local health authorities will intensify the fight against the disease, which has been prevalent in Dublin for the past year. Commenting upon this latest move last night, Dr. M. J. Russell, City Medical Officer of Health, said: "This new development will encourage people to take advantage of the very fine facilities for the treatment of this disease, which are now available for them at the Iveagh Baths, in Dublin. The modern methods do away with the necessity for the disinfection of clothing, which heretofore formed a major part of the treatment."

District Justice Goff Stands By Birching

District Justice Goff yesterday at Drogheda, on committing an eleven-year-old boy to the care of his grandfather for six months, for an assault on a young girl, referred to the criticism of his recent sentence of birching.

He was not very much impressed, he said, with the resulting campaign. What impressed him was the disruptive character of the campaign and the effect it might have on the rule of law. "It has not," he said, "impressed me to the extent that I would refrain from imposing a similar sentence should there be a need for it." He always preferred, where possible, to commit a child to the custody of a relative because the home life would be preserved.

Adjourning the matter for six months, he said that placing the boy under his grandfather's care for six months would involve keeping him in at night and away from undesirable films, "toss pita"—if there were such things in the locality—and bad company. The Guards were instructed to inquire from time to time into the boy's progress.

No Profit on Butter Sales

A deputation from the Irish Retail Traders' Protective Association was received yesterday by the principal officers of the Prices Section of the Department of Supplies at Ballsbridge, Dublin, regarding uneconomic profits accruing from the sale of butter by retail. At a meeting held in Jury's Hotel subsequently Mr. F. Nally, Sligo, Chairman of the Association, said the trade had hitherto done its utmost to co-operate with the Department of Supplies in rationing and controlling prices, but the time had come when they should no longer be compelled to operate their businesses without profit, and even at a loss.

An average of £11 11s. a gallon was paid for 195 hogsheads of single malt Highland whisky at a Glasgow auction yesterday. Its value in 1936 was 5s. a gallon.

New Landing in Solomons

A new Allied landing in the Solomons, this time on Mono Island, S.W. of Shortland Island, at dawn yesterday, was reported from Tokyo yesterday. No announcement of such a landing has yet been made from any Allied source.

New President of U.C.C.

PROFESSOR Alfred O'Rahilly was elected yesterday by the Senate of the National University to be President of University College, Cork, in succession to the late Dr. Merriman.

A Doctor of Philosophy by training, Professor O'Rahilly has held a University Chair in Mathematical Physics, lectured in Sociology, reorganised the College library, founded the successful Cork University Press, become a very trenchant and popular writer on money problems—he is the author of "Money"—and has made his mark as a writer for the periodical press. He also acted as constitutional adviser to the Irish plenipotentiaries in London in 1921; served in the Dail, and as member of such important commissions as the Senate Commission, the Banking Commission, and the Commission for Vocational Organisation.

Born in Listowel, Professor O'Rahilly was educated at Blackrock College, Dublin, and University College, Dublin. He graduated in Mathematical and Experimental Physics in 1907 as a B.A., with first-class honours, and in 1908 as an M.A., with first-class honours and first place. He then entered the Jesuit College at Stonyhurst, where he studied philosophy for three years and took his doctor's degree in that subject. In 1914 he joined the staff of University College, Cork, and has held, in addition to his teaching posts, the Registrarship since 1920, with an interlude during the Anglo-Irish struggle, when he was imprisoned for political activities.

Minister Defends County Manager System

SPEAKING in the Dail yesterday on County Management system, which has now been in operation for twelve months, Mr. S. Lemass, Minister for Local Government and Public Health, said that the general public was quite unmoved by the clamour to get off the Managerial system.

The MINISTER said that where an elective body continued to refuse to make proper supervision for the maintenance of the local services there could be no choice but to dissolve it. He had great reluctance to take such a drastic step, for he firmly believed that in this country the elective bodies were an essential element in any system of municipal or local government. Much damage and much hardship, he suggested, could be occasioned by the misuse of such powers, and, therefore, when the members of a local authority did misuse them there was no option but to deprive them of their office. Local authorities should formulate a policy, discuss problems with the Manager, and give him all their knowledge and information, and should then rely on him to produce results. If, after due time, the Manager failed, they could consider whether his failure was such as to warrant his removal from office. A request for a sworn inquiry into a Manager's administration, if made with any show of reason or plausibility, could not be refused; a demand vexatiously made would be another matter. Stating that he would stand behind the County Managers in the proper exercise of their statutory functions, Mr. MacENTEE added that he would not condone or expect members of any elected body to tolerate any incivility, lack of respect, or act of usurpation on the part of the Manager. It was the duty of the Manager to work harmoniously with his council, and, while doing his duty fearlessly, he should be able to secure from it that assistance and co-operation which no public spirited member would refuse him.

Proceeding, the Minister said that the rate collection for the year ended 31st March last amounted to 86.3 per cent. of the total warrant, as compared with 78.4 per cent. for the previous year. That improvement had been well maintained in the present year.

RAPID INCREASE IN POPULATION

SPEAKING in the Dail last night on public health, when introducing the estimate for his Department, Mr. S. MacENTEE, Minister for Local Government and Public Health, said that the number of marriages registered in 1942 was 17,740—an increase of 2,449 on 1941, and higher by 2,992 than the average annual number for the decennial period 1931-1940. It represented the greatest number of marriages registered here in any year for sixty-five years. In 1878, when the population was larger than to-day, the marriage rate was 4.59 per 1,000; but last year the rate was 5.9 per 1,000—the highest ever recorded.

Births registered in 1942 were 9,337 greater than in 1941, and 9,043 higher than the average for the decennial period 1931-1940. At 66,117 it was equivalent to a birth-rate of 22.31 per 1,000 of the estimated population—the highest rate since 1914.

Examination of the net reproduction rate should, he thought, justify him in saying that during 1942 natural causes were operating to produce an increase of over 30 per cent. in the population in about thirty or forty years from now. The mortality record for 1942 was not quite as satisfactory as in the case of marriages and births, and, in the case of certain diseases, the mortality gave cause for serious concern. At 41,640 the death rate was 2.157 below 1941, and was the third lowest ever recorded here. The number of deaths of children under one year of age was 4,591, being 69 per 1,000 births, compared with 74 per 1,000 in 1941. The rate of maternal mortality fell to 2.47 per 1,000 births, as against 3.2 in 1941, and was the lowest on record.

CAPTAINS OF DEATH

Dealing with causes of death, Mr. MacENTEE said that, after tuberculosis, cancer was the most fatal disease, showing a slightly upward trend in the years 1940 and 1941. Deaths from tuberculosis last year (4,347) showed an upward tendency since 1939—a tendency more marked in the case of pulmonary "T.B." Another disease responsible for a greater number of deaths in 1942 than 1941 was diphtheria. A significant feature was that in ten counties, where immunisation was carried out in 1941, the aggregate mortality from diphtheria in 1942 fell by 80 per cent. compared with 1941. Mortality was greatest in those districts where immunisation schemes were not widely in practice.

An endeavour had been made departmentally to elucidate why there was an increase last year in morbidity and mortality from "T.B." generally. Medical Officers in thirty-one areas ascribed the increase to a number of causes—some cited malnutrition, due partly to a shortage of milk and fats. Others attached importance to the return to this country of persons infected with "T.B." who were formerly resident or employed in Great Britain or on military service there. Others spoke of overcrowding as an important factor. At least two replies were emphatic as to the rôle played by those discharged from the Irish Army on account of "T.B." Others ascribed importance to the increased physical strain on weakly persons working on turf and tillage schemes and taking part in L.D.F. exercises. Others suggested that there was a more rapidly fatal form of the disease prevalent, or stressed the migration to the towns, while several attached importance to mental strain in the present abnormal times.

HARD TO EXPLAIN

Many causes had been ascribed, but when any one was closely considered in the light of the facts it was difficult to assess it as being the really significant factor. There had been a marked increase in the incidence of the disease and the mortality therefrom in Dublin, but the consumption of milk and butter, especially among the very poor, had increased considerably, particularly since 1939. Similarly there was less overcrowding. Whatever the cause of the increase it was not capable of facile explanation.

Our great handicap in fighting the disease, said the Minister, is the shortage of institutional accommodation, but we are doing everything we possibly can to extend our resources in this regard.

WAGES AND FOOD

Mr. COSGRAVE said the Minister should have given an explanation of the "T.B." position in the different counties. Had the reduction of doctors' petrol allowances hindered their efforts against "T.B."? Up to a very few years ago overcrowding was as bad as it had been thirty years ago. To-day it was not much better, and until that situation was improved there was little hope of checking tuberculosis. It was almost impossible for poor people to get proper food at present prices, and incomes should be enough to get proper food. A man should have enough money to keep his family—he had it in Great Britain.

Dr. T. F. O'HIGGINS (F.G.) said that the decline in the death rate from most diseases showed the beginning of a return from twenty years of progressive work with regard to housing and other such schemes. He suggested that the large idle houses in the country equipped for the reception of evacuees should be used for the treatment of T.B. cases.

The House adjourned until Wednesday next.

ATTACK ON SHIP: 'PLANE UNIDENTIFIED

THE identity of the aeroplane which attacked the Wexford motor vessel, Kerlogue, in the Atlantic last week, wounding the captain and a number of officers, and severely damaging the ship, has not yet been established.

In reply to Mr. H. M. Dockrell (F.G.), Mr. DE VALERA told the Dail yesterday that he had received certain particulars regarding the attack, but the information so far available did not enable the machine to be identified. The inquiries, he added, were proceeding.

Asked by Mr. Dockrell if he would consider the advisability of having Irish seamen instructed in methods of identification in order to prevent doubts, Mr. DE VALERA said that he would see about it, but he was sure that already they had got charts.

Brazilian Ship Torpedoed

A Reuter message from Rio de Janeiro this morning stated that the Campos, 4,663 tons, of the Lloyd Brasileno Line, was torpedoed and sunk on Saturday night off the Island of Alcatrazes, between Puertos Sao Sebastiao and Santos, on its way from Rio de Janeiro.

One lifeboat, with 26 of the crew, was towed into Santos by the cutter, Vester. Two lifeboats, in one of which was the master of the Campos, Captain Mario Amaral Gama, are still missing. 'Planes of the Brazilian Air Force are patrolling the area in the hope of sighting the missing boats.

The Campos is the thirty-first Brazilian vessel to be torpedoed, and its loss brings the total Brazilian tonnage sunk by submarines to 150,000 tons.

German Transports Sunk

Two German transports were sunk in the Gulf of Finland and six aircraft were shot down in air combats by 'planes of the Baltic Fleet Air Arm, Moscow Radio announced this morning.—(Reuter.)

Exports of Dairy Cattle to Go On

There were murmurs of approval in the Dail yesterday, when Dr. J. RYAN, Minister for Agriculture, informed Mr. A. Byrne, jun. (Ind.) that it was not proposed to prohibit the export of dairy cows, as the trade was a useful incentive to breeders to retain additional heifers for breeding purposes.

The Minister also said that to meet the case of occupiers of land, which would produce fair crops of rye, but not other cereals, he proposed to ask the Government to include in the Tillage Order for 1944 a provision that in those counties where the wheat quota was one-twenty-fifth of the arable land, the sowing of rye instead of wheat would be accepted as compliance with the Order.

Mr. Herbert Hoover, ex-President of the United States, broadcasting last night from Kansas City, opposed common citizenship and currency and the military alliance with Britain as being both "unnecessary and dangerous." Instead, he called for collaboration among the United Nations.

Will Found in Church Records

A story of how a Co. Donegal man's will was found in the sacristy of a Catholic church near Edinburgh three years after his death was told at Letterkenny Circuit Court on Wednesday, when an application was made by Mary Ann McCarron, Dalkill road, Howth, to have admitted a photostatic copy of a will, stated to have been made by her uncle, James McCarron, of Tubberkeen, Dunglow. The application was opposed by Anna and Kate Boyle, of Tubberkeen, who alleged that the copy was not signed by the deceased man.

Mr. Mi. McGilligan, counsel for the applicant, said that his client wrote in 1937 to Scotland for certificates, which would enable her to establish a claim, as next-of-kin to a share in the estate, and in a search of records the parish priest discovered the original will, which he sent to her. Miss McCarron returned the will to the priest in order to have it registered and lodged. The will was then deposited with the Scottish Keeper of Records, and could not be released without special leave.

A photostatic copy of the will was read, and by its terms the applicant was left the entire property, valued at between £600 and £700.

Adjourning the application, Judge McEnery said that the applicant would have to go to the Scottish Courts of Session and seek temporary custody of the will, or have it produced in Ireland at the next hearing.

PROPERTY AUCTION

Homelee, Church street, Skerries, in fee simple, also the household furniture and effects, were sold by auction yesterday at Skerries at successful prices by Albert MacArthur, "The Householder."

Twenty to One Winner at Powerstown

FOR the most part, well-backed horses scored at Powerstown Park yesterday, but there was a turn-up in the Knockmealdown Hurdle, which was won by the 20 to 1 chance, Lord Barter. Mount Brown, the favourite, found the weight too much for him. The much-fancied Coal Queen, fell after half the journey had been completed in the Keeper Hurdle, and All Shell had little difficulty in repeating the victory he gained at the previous meeting. Beakstown had an exercise outing in the Slievenamon 'Chase, and she is to take her chance in the Leopardstown 'Chase, in which she will be ridden by E. J. Kennedy. Rock Bell was another easy winner, but Dan Kelly had all his work cut out to get the better of Shannon Scheme in the Galtee 'Chase.

Heavy support for Fan go foil enabled backers of King of the Jungle to trade at a reasonable price for the Slieve Bloom Handicap, and he scored quite comfortably. Gussie Goose looked to have won the Sportsmans' Plate when he ran wide entering the straight, and Scart shot up to run him out of it.

Tom Sally Wins Coursing Cup

By MASTER McGRATH.

A duffer from Liscannon, Tom Sally, owned by Mr. M. McHugh, and nominated by Mr. D. Duffy, hon. secretary of the promoting club, brought off the major surprise of the Connaught Cup meeting at Masonbrook yesterday. Showing excellent pace and staying on in fine style, he beat the speedy Venetian Border in the final of the Connaught Cup.

In the decision of the winner scored the turn by at least three lengths. Venetian Border did not put his customary fire into his work, and Tom Sally had a clear mastery of points when the course ended at the slipper's screen, the hare having doubled back.

Then, however, the man in charge of Tom Sally's box was leaping behind before the course ended, threw the cover at the dog in an attempt to stop him, thereby running a grave risk of disqualification.

Rails Score Further Sharp Gains

MOST groups on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday were overshadowed by the continued activity and strength of Home Rails. Both Great Northern and Great Southern issues enjoyed good support, and movements again favoured holders.

Great Northern Ord. jumped three points to 24, and the Guar. two points to 63, while the Pref. and Deb. both closed unchanged. Great Southern prior charges claimed most attention. The Guar. opened firm, but later selling came along, and it finished a shade easier at 54½. There was heavy dealing in the Debenture, and spirited buying brought the price up to 86¾, an advance of two points on the day. The Ord. held steady, and the Pref. hardened to 29¾.

GRAND CANAL JUMP

Grand Canal Ord. jumped into prominence, and closed 13/6 higher at 100/-. Banks made a slightly busier showing, and prices held up well. Guinness Ord. repeated 124/6, but Cairnes Ord. dropped to 23/1½.

Fourth National Loan and 4 p.c. Exchequer Bonds both advanced a point, but Agreement Loan and 3½ p.c. Land Bonds each shed a fraction. 4 p.c. Land Bonds fell 15/- to 108½.

In Draperies, McBirney Pref. fell 2/6 to 14/-, Jas. Elis Bros. Pref. eased to 47/3. Brooks Thomas Pref. advanced 1/6 to 23/6, and Burke Deb. 2/- to 185/-. Cement Ord. eased to 43/9 but Clondalkin Paper Ord. rose to 6/9. Other Irish Industrials were well maintained.

There was a fair amount of interest taken in the financial weeklies, and it was the strength of East Rand Consols at 15/4½.

Two Belfast Rugby Teams for Dublin

CHIEF interest in to-morrow's Rugby probably will centre on the match at Lansdowne road between the headquarters club and North of Ireland, who will be making their first appearance in Dublin this season. Another Northern team, Instonians, also will be seen in Dublin, Bective Rangers opposing them at Donnybrook, while Wanderers travel north to play Collegians in Belfast.

The greatly improved Dublin University side should get the measure of Old Belvedere, although, with a little more finish, a repetition of the midfield running of the Quinns in the Combined Universities versus the Rest match might give the Cup-holders their first victory of the season. U.C.D. travel to Cork to take on University College, Cork, while Monkstown, who have won three of their four matches, will be at home to Clontarf.

Palmerston, with wins over St. Mary's and Curragh Command to their credit, take on Blackrock, and Old Wesley will be visitors to St. Mary's at Kimmage Grove.

Progress in Italy

While events are tumbling over one another on the Russian front, the progress of the Anglo-American offensive in Italy is comparatively slow. The Fifth and Eighth Armies, under Generals Clark and Montgomery respectively, are moving steadily ahead; but there is no doubt that they are faced with a formidable task. Yesterday's reports speak of a "progressively increasing German resistance" along the entire length of the 190-mile front. They refer to a "determined German stand," and warn the British and American people that "a desperately difficult task" faces the Fifth and Eighth Armies. The military situation in Italy is as interesting as it is unusual. When the British and American forces landed at Salerno their total strength was about four divisions, which, in the nature of things, were scattered and temporarily disorganised. They were met by about four German divisions, which had the advantage of superior organisation; and, but for the support that was given to the invaders by the British Navy, the whole enterprise might have ended in disaster. As things turned out, however, the British and Americans managed to establish important bridgeheads on the Italian mainland; and, since the junction of the Fifth and Eighth Armies, they have retained the initiative. From the purely military point of view, the position is almost unique. The British and Americans are faced by a German army, which is defending every inch of ground, but represents only a fraction of the total German forces which are available. Marshal Kesselring has adopted a policy of defence in depth, which means in effect that from the present front to the line of the Po the Anglo-American allies are faced by a solid phalanx of Germans. In a recent interview General Alexander declared that the Fifth and Eighth Armies were containing no fewer than between thirty-five and forty German divisions in Italy and the Balkans; and there is no reason to suppose that he was exaggerating. If his estimate is even approximately correct, the campaign in Italy is likely to be extremely difficult. The line of the Volturno has been forced; but, although the Allied front is flanked on both sides by the sea, on which they have an almost undisputed superiority, the nature of the terrain is such that the defenders have a decided advantage over their attackers. It seems now to be clear that the Germans are fighting a delaying action in Italy. It also is reasonably clear that the Anglo-American Allies lost a chance at the beginning, responsibility for which, according to The Times, can be allotted only by history. The Times, which has a world-wide reputation for sanity of outlook and moderation of expression, has been referring recently to the danger of "half-measures," and its comments on General Alexander's interview were decidedly critical. The landings at Salerno reflected the highest credit on everybody concerned, and they may prove eventually to have been a turning point in the history of the war; but the German reaction was as swift as it was efficient, and the advantage which was given to the Anglo-American forces by their command of sea-power was counteracted largely by Marshal Kesselring's blitzschnell moves. Furthermore, it is obvious now that opportunities were missed in the Dodecanese, where Allied action was half-hearted; and much of the moral effect of Italy's collapse on public opinion in the Balkan countries was offset by the Allies' failure to make the most of their chances. It is quite certain that the conquest of Italy will be no easy matter. Despite their serious preoccupations in Russia, the Germans seem to have strong forces available for deployment in the Italian peninsula. Evidently they are determined to contest every inch of ground, and all reports agree that they have perfected a system of defence in depth which is unique of its kind. On the other hand, the Anglo-American Allies have a potential advantage both in man-power and in material. They are advancing steadily, if slowly. They have an admit
